AMICUS BRIEF OF
GOVERNOR JAMES G. MARTIN,
GOVERNOR JAMES B. HUNT, JR.,
GOVERNOR MICHAEL F. EASLEY,
GOVERNOR BEVERLY E. PERDUE, AND
GOVERNOR PATRICK L. MCCRORY
IN SUPPORT OF GOVERNOR ROY A. COOPER, III

INTRODUCTION¹

Shortly after Governor Cooper was elected in 2016, the General Assembly enacted legislation taking away the Governor's executive power to appoint and supervise the state and county boards of elections. Governor Cooper challenged the legislation and the Supreme Court struck it down as unconstitutional. See Cooper v. Berger, 370 N.C. 392, 395–400, 422, 809 S.E.2d 98, 100–02, 116 (2018).

Undeterred, but recognizing that taking away the Governor's executive power would require a constitutional amendment, the General Assembly proposed one to the voters seven months later. See N.C. Sess. Law 2018-133 (App. 9–10). Like the legislation that the Supreme Court struck down, the proposed constitutional amendment would have taken away the Governor's executive power to supervise the state and county boards of elections.

In the Fall of 2018, with the proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot, the five living former Governors joined together to speak in opposition to the proposed amendment. The former Governors took their message directly to the people of North Carolina through public appearances, television programs, and print media, sharing why it was so critically important that the people reject the attempt to ratify the proposed amendment as a part of their Constitution.

The former Governors were well-positioned to offer their insights on the matter. Their unique, shared experience as our State's Chief Executive gave them a deep understanding of how North Carolina's longstanding separation-of-powers guarantee works in the real world. As that experience showed, the General Assembly's proposed amendment would not only have eroded the Constitution's separation-of-powers guarantee, but it would also have impeded the proper functioning of good government where the people of North Carolina perhaps need it the most: in the executive-branch agency charged with ensuring that our elections are lawful and accurate.

The people of North Carolina agreed. At the ballot box in November 2018, they overwhelmingly rejected the General Assembly's proposed constitutional amendment by a vote of 62% to 38%, voting "NO" in 88 out of 100 counties.²

² 11/06/2018 Official General Election Results – Statewide, Bipartisan Board of Ethics & Elections, Historical Election Results Data, State Board of Elections, https://er.ncsbe.gov/contest_details.html?election_dt=11/06/2018&county_id=0&contest_id=1422.

Despite all this, the General Assembly has now tried again. This time, even after acknowledging that they would need a constitutional amendment like the one the people overwhelmingly rejected in 2018, the General Assembly in Senate Bill 749 has tried to achieve that result through mere legislation (yet again). See Cooper, 370 N.C. at 418, 809 S.E.2d at 114. And so again, the former Governors have united, this time to urge the Court to preserve North Carolina's separation-of-powers guarantee and affirm the three-judge panel's unanimous decision striking down the law.

To be clear, the former Governors strongly agree with Governor Cooper that the three-judge panel in this case got it exactly right. The Supreme Court has already held that this legislation did not present a "political question" insulated from judicial review and, furthermore, that it violated the Constitution "impermissibly, facially, and beyond a reasonable doubt." Id. at 418–22, 809 S.E.2d at 114–16. Thus, the only two questions before the Court in this case were definitively answered by controlling precedent from a mere six years ago. Against that backdrop, the General Assembly's passage of Senate Bill 749 is about as "stark" and "blatant" an attempt to violate the Constitution as North Carolina has seen in some time. (R p 128).

Likewise, the arguments that the General Assembly is attempting to make in this case are similarly extreme. The General Assembly's lead argument is that the political-question doctrine can nullify an express constitutional limitation on the General Assembly (the Constitution's separation-of-powers mandate) that has been in place since the founding of our State. That kind of extreme suggestion has no place in our State's jurisprudence. See, e.g., Leandro v. State, 346 N.C. 336, 345, 488 S.E.2d 249, 253 (1997) ("It has long been understood that it is the duty of the courts to determine the meaning of the requirements of our Constitution.").

But beyond the damage that Senate Bill 749 would do to our Constitution, it suffers from a more basic flaw: Not only is it unconstitutional, but it also lacks any legitimate justification for its enactment—a "solution without a problem" that reveals its true motive. As described below, there is no legitimate justification—nor has the General Assembly identified one—for eliminating the Governor's executive power to appoint and supervise the Board of Elections. In short, there is no problem in need of a solution here. Rather, for nearly 125 years, the Board of Elections has faithfully ensured that our elections are lawful and accurate.

Moreover, and ironically, the General Assembly's "solution" to the non-existent problem actually creates a significant problem. Under Senate Bill 749, the state and county boards of elections would have an even number of members, virtually guaranteeing deadlocked votes, including on whether to certify election results—a situation where North Carolinians' long-awaited end to each November election could unnecessarily extend into the holidays and beyond.

With these practical realities in mind, this brief focuses on the fact that Senate Bill 749 was not driven by any actual need to solve a real-world problem. Instead, it was driven by the General Assembly's continued campaign to seize the Governor's constitutional powers. In focusing on that issue, the former Governors seek to show the Court that Senate Bill 749 should be viewed as what it really is: the General Assembly's latest unconstitutional power grab.

NATURE OF AMICI'S INTEREST

The five living former Governors of North Carolina have a strong interest in this case: their interest in preserving the executive power, status, and dignity that the Constitution confers on the Office of the Governor.

Other than Governor Cooper, they are the only five living individuals who have been entrusted with the State's executive power. See N.C. Const. art. III, § 1. That unique, shared experience has given the former Governors a deep understanding of how the Constitution's separation-of-powers guarantee works in the real world. Based on that experience, the former Governors seek to share their perspective that not only is Senate Bill 749 unconstitutional, but it also lacks any legitimate justification.

Although the former Governors' affiliation is bipartisan (two Republican and three Democratic former Governors), their interest is nonpartisan. This case, after all, is not about partisan politics. It is about the separation of powers—a bedrock constitutional principle as old as the State of North Carolina itself. That foundational principle transcends politics.

Embracing that foundational principle, the former Governors ask the Court to affirm the three-judge panel's unanimous decision invalidating Senate Bill 749.

ARGUMENT

I. With no legitimate justification for its enactment, Senate Bill 749 reveals itself as the General Assembly's latest attempt to seize the Governor's constitutionally conferred executive power.

A. There is no legitimate justification—nor has the General Assembly identified one—for eliminating the Governor's power to appoint and supervise the Board of Elections.

For nearly 125 years, the Governor has appointed the members of the State Board of Elections. Beginning in 1901, the Board was constituted as a five-member entity, with no more than three members from the same political party and any vacancies to be filled by the Governor. See N.C. Pub. L. No. 89-1901, § 5 (App. 1–4). That structure has remained to this day—at least until Senate Bill 749 attempted to take away the Governor's executive power of appointment and supervision.

Had it not been enjoined by the three-judge panel, Senate Bill 749 would have eliminated the Governor's executive power to appoint and supervise the State Board of Elections and the 100 county boards of elections, and it would have transferred that executive power to the General Assembly—in some cases, to the Speaker of the House or Senate President Pro Tempore individually. See N.C. Sess. Law 2023-139 (App. 11–27). It would also have created gridlock by design: a State Board of Elections and county boards of elections with an even number of members, virtually guaranteeing deadlocked votes. See id.

As justification for such a radical restructuring, one might think that if the Board of Elections had actually failed to administer lawful and accurate elections in North Carolina over the course of almost 125 years, the General Assembly would be quick to cite to those instances. But that is not the case.

Even with a 125-year retrospective, the General Assembly is apparently unable to identify a single instance where the Board failed to administer a lawful and accurate election. In its submissions before the Superior Court and its brief to this Court, nowhere has the General Assembly pointed to a shred of evidence suggesting that the Board of Elections has failed to perform its duties, much less that the Governor's exercise of executive power to appoint and supervise the Board warrants the gridlock-by-design “solution” proposed in Senate Bill 749.

In its brief, the General Assembly says that it is entitled “to question and try different solutions.” Leg. Defs.’ Br. p. 22. But conspicuously missing from that statement about “solutions” is an identification of a legitimate problem.³ And the absence of any legitimate problem only proves the point: Senate Bill 749 is not legislation that is designed to solve a real problem. Instead, it is the General Assembly’s latest attempt at a power grab.

The reality, as described below, is that not only is the State Board of Elections not in need of a “solution” for a nonexistent problem, but the opposite is true. For nearly 125 years, our Board of Elections, with its members appointed and supervised by the Governor, has faithfully ensured time and time again that our elections are lawful and accurate.⁴

B. For nearly 125 years, the Board of Elections has faithfully ensured that our elections are lawful and accurate.

Since the Board's creation in 1901, twenty-five Governors have appointed and supervised its members.⁵ Over the course of these nearly 125 years, the Board of Elections has faithfully ensured lawful and accurate elections for North Carolina's voters, even when the election outcome might not have been what the Governor desired.

North Carolina's history is replete with these examples, and many of them are recent enough to remember quite well. Many of them are also those that the former Governors experienced firsthand.

Perhaps most notably, in 2016 the Board of Elections (appointed and supervised by Governor McCrory) administered the closest gubernatorial election in state history.⁶ Demonstrating the Board's ability to function in even the most heightened of political atmospheres, the Board concluded that ⁵ The Board was briefly placed under the Department of the Secretary of State in 1971, but that legislation was repealed in 1973. See N.C. Sess. Law 1971-864, § 4(5) (repealed 1973) (App. 5–7); N.C. Sess. Law 1973-1409 (App. 8). The General Assembly also enacted legislation altering the Board in late 2016 and early 2017 that was struck down as unconstitutional. See Cooper, 370 N.C. at 395, 422, 809 S.E.2d at 100, 116.

although ordering a recount could “ease concerns among the population,” it would “very likely not change the result” that Governor Cooper had won.⁷ Five days later, Governor McCrory conceded the election, urging North Carolinians to “celebrate our democratic process” and “respect what [he saw] to be the ultimate outcome”—a result certified by a Board of Elections that Governor McCrory appointed and supervised.⁸

Likewise, the Board’s successful administration of elections involving political party transitions in the Governor’s Office has been characteristic of the Board throughout the last several decades. In 1984, the Board of Elections (appointed and supervised by Governor Hunt) administered the election and certified Governor Martin’s victory that year. In 1992, the Board of Elections (appointed and supervised by Governor Martin) administered the election and certified Governor Hunt’s victory that year. And in 2012, the Board of Elections (appointed and supervised by Governor Perdue, who had defeated Governor McCrory in 2008) administered the election and certified Governor McCrory's victory that year.

Even more recently, the Board of Elections showed itself once again to be adept at administering lawful and accurate elections regardless of whether the outcome might disappoint the Governor who appointed and supervised the Board at that time. In 2020, the Board of Elections (appointed and supervised by Governor Cooper) administered the election in which Chief Justice Paul Newby defeated then-Chief Justice Cheri Beasley—a race that was decided by approximately 400 votes.⁹ Despite the heavily contested election, both candidates praised the work of the Board of Elections in administering the election lawfully and accurately. Chief Justice Newby specifically thanked the “county boards of elections for their tireless work” in “faithfully and diligently appl[y]ing the direction they received through the election, the recount, and the second recount.”¹⁰ Similarly, then-Chief Justice Beasley offered her “deepest thanks to the dedicated Board of Elections officials” who “worked tirelessly to protect and reaffirm the integrity of our most sacred democratic institution.”¹¹ As both Chief Justice Newby’s and then-Chief Justice Beasley’s public statements made clear, the system worked as it should.

As another example, in 1994 the Board of Elections (appointed and supervised by Governor Hunt) administered a closely contested State Senate election between now-Secretary of State Elaine Marshall and Senator Dan Page. The election did not result in a clear winner, and a recount appeared to have ended in a tie.¹² The Board of Elections then ordered a new election to be conducted in March 1995, which Senator Page won.¹³ There as well, although Governor Hunt may have desired a different outcome, the system worked as it should, and this incredibly close election was administered lawfully and accurately.

Nor is there any suggestion that the current Board of Elections appointed and supervised by Governor Cooper has somehow departed from the Board’s exemplary 125-year track record. If anything, the events of the past month have only further confirmed that the Board of Elections, with its members appointed and supervised by the Governor, continues to function as it should, effectively meeting even the greatest challenges to administering lawful and accurate elections.

As of the filing of this brief (one week before the 2024 election), the Board of Elections is working around the clock to ensure a lawful and accurate election in the wake of the devastation caused by Hurricane Helene in western North Carolina. Following Governor Cooper's declaration of a state of emergency, the Board of Elections unanimously authorized a series of critical emergency measures ahead of the 2024 election, including authorizing county boards to modify early voting hours, polling locations, and absentee voting procedures to protect the electoral process for voters affected by Hurricane Helene.¹⁴

The early results of these and other efforts are already a success: In the counties within the federal disaster area, 95% of early voting sites (76 out of

80) planned before Hurricane Helene were open on the first day of early voting.¹⁵

These efforts have also drawn bipartisan recognition. The Republican Party Chair for the 11th Congressional District remarked that “[t]he State Board of Elections has done a great job,” and that “[e]very county [board] has done an incredible job.”¹⁶ The Democratic Party Chair for the 11th Congressional District agreed, adding that “[t]he people at the Board of Election[s] . . . are working very hard to make this election go as smoothly as possible.”¹⁷

As this bipartisan recognition reflects, and as our history shows, our Board of Elections is hardly in need of a “solution,” least of all the unconstitutional, gridlock-by-design “solution” that Senate Bill 749 offers. Instead, for nearly 125 years, the Board of Elections, with its members appointed and supervised by the Governor, has faithfully ensured that our elections are lawful and accurate.

The examples above are just some of the myriad examples of the Board of Elections faithfully administering lawful and accurate elections over the course of nearly 125 years, including when the Governor who appointed and supervised the Board at the time might have desired for an election to come out a different way. Meanwhile, the General Assembly has yet to cite a single, concrete example of a problem that was the motivation for—let alone could justify—Senate Bill 749’s elimination of the Governor’s executive power.

Nor could it. The real motivation for Senate Bill 749 is the General Assembly’s desire to try, yet again, to seize the Governor’s executive power to appoint and supervise the Board of Elections—an attempt that comes after the Supreme Court rejected it the first time and the people of North Carolina overwhelmingly rejected it the second time.

The Court should recognize Senate Bill 749 for what it really is: the legislature’s most recent attempt at an unconstitutional power grab.

CONCLUSION

The three-judge panel’s unanimous decision invalidating Senate Bill 749 should be affirmed.

Respectfully submitted the 29th day of October, 2024.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

SESSION

And we must do more. I Chaired the Governor's Task Force on the Driving While Impaired, serving with Senator Odom and Senator Forrester, and by continuing to be pro-active, the package of recommendations by this Task Force will do even more to stop drunk driving and help prevent repeat offenders—repeat offenders from getting behind the wheel in this State.

"And finally, I'll be working very closely with the Governor to cut taxes. I very deeply believe, deeply believe that we must provide relief to our working families. It's working families who pay the most cost of government, and they're the ones who deserve the relief.

"Members of the Senate, as your presiding officer, I pledge to you my commitment to working with you. My role is best served as being a facilitator for your agenda. And every presiding officer has his or her own leadership style. I hope I have a reputation for being fair-minded and even-handed. But I'll tell you what I told those in orientation, I expect order, and I believe that we have an obligation to conduct ourselves with dignity while the Senate is in session. Remember that the eyes of the public are upon you, and we must lead by example. We are here to help our people and empower them the opportunities that will help them reach their full potential. I believe that this is the true function of government, empowering our people promotes and enriches our most precious resource, and this is a legacy that I believe that we should leave behind so that generations to follow us will inherit a better quality of life in this State. And I look forward to working with you as your Lieutenant Governor in pursuit of that legacy. Thank you very much."

The Senate responds with a standing ovation.

4. In each county, all precinct chief judges and precinct judges, including but not limited to those judges appointed pursuant to the terms of this order, shall attend a three-hour training session to be held by each county board of elections during the week of March 20, 1995, on or before March 23, 1995. All county board members and a representative from the State Board of Elections will attend each training session.

5. For purposes of this special election, either political party may appoint to the position of observer persons who are not residents of the precinct in which they are appointed provided they are residents of District 15 and the county in which they are appointed. In all other respects, the appointment of observers shall be governed by the provisions of G.S. 163-45, including, but not limited to, the requirement that individuals authorized to appoint observers (the chairman of each political party) must, prior to 10:00 a.m. on the fifth day prior to the special election (March 23, 1995), submit in writing to the chairman of the county board of elections two signed copies of a list of observers appointed by them designating the precinct for which each observer is appointed.

9. All ballots used in all counties shall only contain the names of the two candidates and shall not contain provisions for straight ticket voting. The ballots will also show the party affiliation of each candidate in the customary manner.

10. For this special election, the county boards of election in Harnett, Johnston, and Sampson shall use the voting systems used in those counties during the 1994 General Election.

11. For this special election, in Lee County voting shall be done by traditional paper ballots that will be printed by the State Board of Elections. All ballots in each precinct shall be counted only by the precinct officials for each precinct. Any ballot that is disputed by any of the precinct officials shall be segregated from the other ballots for the precinct by placing them in a sealed envelope signed and dated by each precinct official. The envelope containing disputed ballots shall be placed in the precinct's ballot box and sealed with the other ballots for the precinct.

12. In all counties observers and members of the public shall have full and complete access to observe the counting of ballots.

13. It is stipulated by candidates Elaine Marshall and Dan Page that neither of them will appeal this order and that Page will dismiss his petition for judicial review of previous orders of the State Board, now pending in Wake County Superior Court as 94 CIV 11980.

14. In all respects not addressed by this order, this special election shall be conducted under the supervision of the State Board of Elections and in accordance with the appropriate procedures contained in Chapter 163 of the General Statutes.
