

LOCAL SNAPSHOT: North Carolinians Eligible for Governor Cooper’s Child and Dependent Care Tax Credit

Governor Cooper’s budget included a child and dependent care tax credit to help working families afford the cost of quality child care. Child care in North Carolina costs more than $7,500 a year on average. Cooper’s proposed tax credit would help over 200,000 North Carolina families. Here’s a look at how many families would be eligible county-by-county:
