ROY COOPER
GOVERNOR

TICK AND MOSQUITO AWARENESS MONTH

2022

BY THE GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, tick and mosquito transmitted diseases affect people across the United States and are significant health threats as well as a nuisance in North Carolina; and

WHEREAS, based on public health surveillance conducted by the Division of Public Health, almost 1,000 cases of tick and mosquito-borne diseases were reported among people in North Carolina last year; and

WHEREAS, the tick-borne diseases Rocky Mountain spotted fever, ehrlichiosis, and Lyme disease, as well as the mosquito-borne diseases La Crosse encephalitis, West Nile encephalitis, and eastern equine encephalitis are preventable diseases endemic to North Carolina; and

WHEREAS, North Carolina is actively monitoring for cases of other mosquito-borne infections such as Zika, chikungunya, malaria and dengue associated with international travel; and

WHEREAS, effective prevention against tick- and mosquito-borne illness is achievable through scientifically informed, integrated pest management strategies and personal protective measures during seasons of high tick and mosquito activity; and

WHEREAS, Tick and Mosquito Awareness Month is an opportunity for North Carolina residents and health care providers to learn more about the threat, medical implications and prevention of these diseases;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, ROY COOPER, Governor of the State of North Carolina, do hereby proclaim April 2022, as "TICK AND MOSQUITO AWARENESS MONTH" in North Carolina, and commend its observance to all citizens.

Roy Cooper
Governor

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Great Seal of the State of North Carolina at the Capitol in Raleigh this thirtieth day of March in the year of our Lord two thousand and twenty-two and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and forty-sixth.
